The learners from Camphill School, Hermanus can now experience the joy of playing outside in the mud in their new gumboots. This has been made possible by good samaritan Koos du Toit.

In an interview with Whale Coast FM, presenter Nelia Louw, Jeanne-Marie

Botha, principal of Camphill, shared how the school has been coping after the devastating fires of earlier this year and some of the needs of the school. One of the necessities she mentioned was the children's need of gumboots, as their terrain is quite muddy.

It led to Du Toit's magnanimous action, feeling an overwhelming need to help the school. "With the help of someone I know I was able to have the gumboots delivered from Johannesburg to Hermanus," he said.

On Friday 30 August, he visited the school and handed the boots over to the learners.

Botha said the children were excited about their brand-new boots. "We want to thank Mr du Toit wholeheartedly for this very useful and wonderful donation," she said.

Du Toit said he lives by saving some and giving some, and in this way is able to re-invest in his community.
